3. Per claim 1 (Currently amended)

Sasse discloses

A method for downloading settings for an application into a device, comprising:

- programming a menu system of the device in dependence of and preparation for at least one predetermined application to be downloaded, such that the device is adapted to display a menu in which a user may navigate, the menu being tailored to handle downloading of settings in connection with said application and guiding the user (in specifications "The invention relates to a method for terminal assisted menu presentation of value added services in mobile communication systems where said value added services are accessible via value added services nodes. Objects containing data in the form of programs, functions, etc. are loaded in the mobile terminal and said objects are controlled, modified or executed via the aerial interface of the mobile communication system. Said objects allow a preferably visual menu presentation in the mobile station for the selected value added service making it considerably easier for the subscriber to use it").

- actuating the device by means of a keystroke while in said menu causing the device to contact a server and download the settings for the application (on page 2 in specifications “The mobile station user is able to initiate functions in the value added services nodes by means of actuating the keys displayed in the menu. When a key is actuated, the menu in the display of the mobile terminal is adjusted by the value added services node in accordance with the action that took place in the value added services node.”).

4. Per claim 2 (Currently amended)

the rejection of claim 1 is incorporated and Sasse further discloses the device to contact the server comprises:

- causing the device to contact the server over the air by calling a telephone number loaded into the device and associated with said application (on page 3 in specifications “The loading process is initiated via the aerial interface by the user or by events, such as the initial call from/to a value added services node.”)

5. Per claim 3 (Currently amended)

the rejection of claim 1 is incorporated and Sasse further discloses

- establishing a session with the server, wherein questions and answers are presented in further menus in the device (on page 1a in specifications “The object of the invention is to propose a method for terminal assisted menu presentation of value added services in mobile communication systems, which optimally assists the subscriber in the use of a value added service via his mobile station.”).

6. Per claim 4 (Currently amended)

the rejection of claim 1 is incorporated and Sasse further discloses

- exchanging information between the device and the server by means of one or more messages in a standardized format (on page 4 in specifications “The preferred transmitting mechanisms for the objects via the mobile telephone network 4 are short messages (SM: short messages) or GPRS services.”).

7. Per claim 5 (Currently amended)

the rejection of claim 4 is incorporated and Sasse further discloses

- the standardized format is short message service (SMS) (on page 4 in specifications “Short messages (SM) or GPRS services are also used for controlling the objects.”)

8. Per claim 6 (Currently amended)

the rejection of claim 1 is incorporated and Sasse further discloses programming a menu system of the device comprises:

- programming a menu system of the device in dependence of several predetermined applications, some of the applications originating from different service providers, each having a different server, such that a correct server associated with the respective application is contacted (on page 6 in specifications “This takes place by means of a SIM card reading and writing device from the service provider 10 by means of which the required data are written into the memory of SIM. The service provider can request the respective object data from the object center 9 and supply these to the SIM card reading and writing device.”).

9. Per claim 7 (Currently amended)

the rejection of claim 5 is incorporated and Sasse further discloses

- presetting the device to a specific service provider by selecting a service provider from a list in a menu (on page 2 in specifications “The objects assist the operation between mobile station user and the value added services node in that the menu for utilizing the respective value added service is displayed fully or in part on the display of the MS (mobile station) part depending on the actual position in the menu.”).

10. Per claim 8 (Currently amended)

the rejection of claim 5 is incorporated and Sasse further discloses

- presetting the device to a specific service provider by inserting a smart card (SIM) containing information about possible service providers and services (on page 6 in specifications “This takes place by means of a SIM card reading and writing device from the service provider 10 by means of which the required data are written into the memory of SIM. The service provider can request the respective object data from the object center 9 and supply these to the SIM card reading and writing device.”).

Art Unit: 2191

11. Per claim 17 (Currently amended)

the rejection of claim 9 is incorporated and Sasse further discloses

- the device is a portable telephone, a pager, a communicator, a smart phone or an electronic organizer (In abstract, the invention related to mobile devices which may comprise portable telephone, cell phone, a pager, a communicator, a smart phone or an electronic organizer etc.).

12. Per claims 9-16 (Currently amended)

- They are device claims corresponding to the method claims 1-8 respectively and are rejected the same reason set forth in connection of the rejection of claims 1-8 above.
